Local Graphic Design Firm Wins Three National Awards

Garson Design Services wins for work done for Paradise Valley Estates, Solano County Bar Association and Feather My Nest

(Fairfield, CA) – Solano companies looking for award winning professional graphic design don't have to go to San Francisco or Sacramento. Garson Design Services (GDS), located in Fairfield since 1992, continues to win national design awards for local Solano County clients. GDS recently won three American Graphic Design Awards from Graphic Design USA, a national graphic design trade publication. GDS's designs were among the few pieces honored out of over 10,000 entries.

AMERICAN GRAPHIC DESIGN AWARD
2008 WINNER

"We're very happy to be recognized by the GDUSA judges and to represent Northern California and specifically Solano County as an area of premier graphic design capabilities," says Steve Garson, owner of GDS.

The awards were given for a "tongue in cheek" direct mail postcard for Paradise Valley Estates, the only accredited Military Officer Retirement Community in California; a Magazine done "Solano Lawyer" produced for Solano County Bar Association and an eclectic logo design for Feather My Nest a local interior design company owned by Shelby French. Garson Design also maintains the website of the same winning companies.

The American Graphic Designs Awards program is sponsored by New Page a manufacturer of hi-end paperstock. It honors new works in print, advertising, packaging, internet, broadcast and motion graphics, among other categories.

GDS received a Certificate of Excellence for each of its winning designs and has been included in Graphic Design USA's 2008 Awards Annual. The 300-page publication becomes available this month (January) and is expected to be read by over 100,000 colleagues and clients.
